Well, another month has passed, and we are officially doing the fall thing. Raking leaves, preparing our gardens and what not for winter. Personally, this is my favorite time of the year.

We attended the Harvest Fair at the Centreville Baptist Church on the 22nd, and what a great turn out. There was something there for everyone. Baked items, crafts, books, odds n' ends of things, a silent auction, a teddy bear room where stuffed animals were for sale. The fish pond for the kids as well as face painting the bounce room and popcorn all ensured that the kids were happy too. Everything from hot dogs, chili, chicken BBQ was available throughout different times of the day and all very reasonable priced. From what I have heard, this turned out to be very successful even though it rained and was the kind of day you may have wanted to stay put.

One of my treasures I found in the book room was a copy of Alex Middleton's poem book that was published in April of 1992. The poems are all about our area and the Valley. He writes about his point of view, and it is very interesting. Each month I will include one of his poems for the readers. This month, The Signs of Coming Winter can be found on page 9.

I would urge all the readers to carefully read the letters that were submitted by the CDCDA on page 10 and 11. If you live in this community, you NEED to know what is going on. The tremendous amount of work that is done on behalf of this community by a group of volunteers who have dedicated themselves to issues that really affect this community has to be commended. There are times when the public is brought together to vote on some of these issues, for it is the community that has the say, and I hope that when these meetings are held we will all take the time to attend and let our voices and support be heard. And to let them know that we appreciate what they are doing on behalf of our community.

With the traditional pumpkin carving this time of year, why not add hairy scarries to your displays. With a little imagination and some bright reds, this is a great use for those leaves that will be falling soon. Just fill grocery bags full of leaves and stuff old clothes such as overalls and plaid jackets with these. Display them on your front porches or lawns and enjoy.

Again, a reminder that you can drop off your submissions at the Centreville Kwik Way.. All others can be dropped off to me or mailed.

KINGS CITIZEN'S PATROL

R.C.M.P. NOVA SCOTIA
CITIZEN'S PATROL
COMMUNITY POLICING

The Kings Citizen's Patrol is a non-funded, non-profit volunteer group operating under the umbrella of the Kings Crime Prevention Association and regulated by the Kings Detachment of the RCMP.

It is made up of area residents interested in assisting the police in making the community a safer place to reside.

The role of the Citizen's Patrol is to reduce crime in our area by means of patrolling the area in their own vehicles, using their own gas without compensation and most important giving of their own time.

TRAINING

Members of the Citizen's Patrol must attend a training session prior to going on patrol.

These training sessions are conducted by members of the RCMP and related agencies.

The training consists of instruction in memory and observation, responsibility of the patrols, note taking and report writing, and evidence protection.

In addition to this, new members must go on two patrols with experienced members prior to going on patrol with another new member.

Subsequent training sessions are conducted at regular monthly meetings held by the patrol members.

The most important aspect of the training is that the patrol in no way replaces the regular police forces. The members are to act as additional eyes and ears for the RCMP, to observe and report.

PATROL

The patrol covers the same physical area as the New Minas office of the RCMP, that is from the Hants/Kings County line to the village of Aylesford and from the Bay of Fundy shore to the Lunenburg/Kings County line.

All patrols start from and conclude at the RCMP office in New Minas.

Each patrol consists of a minimum of two patrol members, one a driver and the other an observer and note taker.

Members are not permitted to patrol alone.

It is the intention of the Kings Citizen's Patrol to have a patrol active each evening.

The patrol time is set by the members going out on patrol, however the average patrol lasts approximately five hours covering 120 to 150 kms.

All areas as well as times visited and observations made, are recorded and filed by the patrol.

If there is a requirement to contact the RCMP immediately, each patrol is equipped with a cellular telephone for this purpose, plus RCMP portable radio.

RCMP communications are monitored via RCMP portable radio.

At the end of each patrol, the notes and reports from the patrol are filed with the RCMP.

These reports are reviewed by one of the detachment Staff Sergeants.

EQUIPMENT

Kits containing a limited amount of equipment (flashlights, traffic vests, report forms, etc.) are provided by the RCMP.

Items such as first aid kits, batteries, cellular telephone bills are paid out of funds raised by the Citizen's Patrol membership where as the Kings Crime Prevention Association is a non-funded, non-profit organization.

Gasoline for members vehicles is provided by the member.

The Kings Citizen's Patrol was developed and implemented in October of 1994.

The program resulted in the participation of fifty or so individuals from the county of Kings.

To date, the patrol has logged over 444000 kilometres and has contributed over 30000 hours of community assistance to the RCMP as of December 31, 2000.

The role of the Citizen's Patrol is to reduce crime in our area by means of patrolling the area in their own vehicle, using their own gas, without compensation and report any crime that may be occurring to the RCMP. Their eyes and ears are a definite asset to the police and have actually been responsible for saving the life of a suicidal person.

To My Friends.....

I'm writing you to let you know that I have recently been diagnosed with a serious condition and there's no hope I will ever get over it. It may be hereditary as well. The scientific world is frantically searching for a cure. This is an ailment many of us suffer from and may not as yet have been diagnosed. However, now you may be able to discuss it with your loved ones and try to explain what really happened to you all those times you tried so hard to accomplish something and didn't.

It's called the "Butfirst Syndrome"

It's like when I decide to do the laundry - I start down the hall and notice the newspaper on the table. Okay, I'm going to do the laundry Butfirst I'm going to read the newspaper. After that, I notice the mail on the table. Okay, I'll just put the newspaper in the recycle stack, Butfirst I'll look through that pile of mail and see if there are any bills to be paid. Now where's the checkbook??
Oops!?

There's the empty glass from yesterday on the coffee table. I'm going to look for that checkbook, Butfirst I need to put the glass in the sink.? I head for the kitchen, out the window, notice my poor flowers need a drink of water.? I put the glass in the sink, and I'll be, there's the remote for the TV on the kitchen counter. What's it doing here?? I'll just put it away,? Butfirst I need to water those plants. Head for door and Ack!?? Stepped on the dog.? Dog needs to be fed. Okay, I'll put that remote away and water the plants.? Butfirst I need to feed the dog. At the end of the day: Laundry is not done, newspapers are still on the floor, glass is still in the sink, bills are unpaid, checkbook is still missing, and the dog ate the remote control. AND, when I try to figure out how come nothing got done all day, I'm baffled, because I KNOW I was BUSY ALL DAY ! I realize this condition is serious and I should get help, Butfirst I think I'll read all my email!

Story From The Family Farm

Submitted by Mack Frail

The story of the past is well told at the New Ross Farm Museum.

The old buildings that were on the location that was the original Capt. William Ross property and also those buildings that have been brought there and arranged to depict the era from 1817 when the Ross house was built. This same house is on location at the Ross Farm Museum.

The demonstrations that are carried out at the New Ross farm Museum with the tools and equipment from the past and with a detailed explanation concerning their purpose and the manner in which they were used, receives a lot of interest from the public.

This method is much superior to a static display which is the method that is used by most museums.

The old farm buildings along with the sounds and the smells bring back memories of growing up on the small Family Farm here in Centreville.

The Blacksmith Shop that was moved on sight from another location in the village of New Ross reminds me of the Sam Ogilvie Blacksmith Shop that was here in Centreville.

The Cooper Shop brought back memories of my fathers Cooper Shop that he operated here in Centreville on our small family farm.

The farm barns and chicken coops are a reminder of when they were so prominent in the community of Centreville.

There is something of interest to everyone who visits the New Ross Farm Museum

The New Ross Fair that is held each summer is also a well organized community effort that brings the people in the community together with displays and exhibitions.

The New Ross Museum and the fair grounds are both a big asset to the Village of New Ross.

It is interesting to read the history of New Ross and about the early settlers and their struggle to survive. With most of the land in the New Ross area being un-tillable, forestry has been the main occupation.

A lot of barrels that were made in New Ross have been delivered to the farmers in the Annapolis Valley to be used as containers for their crops that were grown in the fertile and productive agriculture lands of the Annapolis Valley.

The direction the Annapolis Valley Family Farm Museum is not to become an exhibition with several teams of horses and yokes of oxen, but it is to be a normal working farm museum that would depict life as it was on the family farm. It would be similar to the New Ross Farm Museum considering that the history of farming is uniquely different in both of these areas. The two farm museums would not interfere with each other.

This type of a museum would be the first for the Annapolis Valley.

The Annapolis Valley is the best agriculture area in Nova Scotia, and with over three hundred years of farming history and many historical facts and stories to tell, there should be lots of support for a working farm museum in what more obvious location than here in the Annapolis Valley.

Here in the community of Centreville there are homes that were built in the early nineteenth century. One of the old homes that is practically in its original condition and including the old carriage shed and the old Centreville Post Office is on the property adjoining the Annapolis Valley Family Farm Museum

The property that is available to the Annapolis Valley Family Farm Museum and the old barn have historical significance, and the property has been expressed by a lot of people as a wonderful property with a lot of possibilities for the public.

The Annapolis Valley Family Farm Museum project needs more support and attendance at the general meetings that are held at the Farm Museum location where the public is welcome to come and enjoy the guest speakers.

A Road Less Travelled

In Matthew 18 Jesus tells a parable about a king who settles his accounts with his servants. Among the accounts was the debt of a servant who owed the king 10,000 talents, which is approximately 60 million denarii, one denarius was an average days wage. The servant had a debt which was impossible to pay. Since he was unable to pay, his master commanded that he, his wife and children, along with all his belongings be sold. The servant fell down at his master's feet begging the king for patience so that he could repay the debt. This was of course a vainly pathetic act for he could never possibly repay such a large amount of money. The king, however, was moved with compassion so he cancelled the debt and set him free.

Well, immediately that servant went out and found a fellow servant who owed him one hundred denarii. He took the man by the throat and demanded that he pay back what was owed to him. His fellow servant fell at his feet and begged him to have patience and he would repay all that he owed. But the servant refused to listen to him and had him thrown into prison until the whole debt was repaid. The servant was completely irrational and unreasonable. How could the man repay the debt if he could not work and earn the money to pay him back?

When his fellow servants saw what he had done they were deeply saddened and went to report his actions to the king. The king summoned the servant to appear before him at once, and said to him, "You wicked servant! I forgave you all that debt because you begged me. Should you have not done the same thing for your fellow servant, having compassion on him just as I had pity on you?" The king was angry and sent him to prison to be tortured until he had repaid all that was owed to him.

Our sin, like the 10,000 talents, is a debt which is impossible to repay. Filled with compassion, God sent Jesus to die on a cross to cancel the debt and set us free. The servant's behavior after he is forgiven is inexplicable. How can one be forgiven of so much and then not forgive for so little? Jesus said, "The person who is forgiven of only a little will love only a little" (Luke 7:47). Could the answer be doubt? Here's what Max Lucado has to say, "To believe we are totally and eternally debt free is seldom easy. Even if we've stood before the throne and heard it from the king himself, we still doubt. As a result, many are only forgiven a little, not because the grace of the king is limited, but because the faith of the sinner is small....He guides us to a pool of mercy and invites us to bathe. Some plunge in, but others just touch the surface. They leave feeling unforgiven."

Could that be what happened with the unforgiving servant? Could it be that he just couldn't accept the reality of the king's gracious gesture? Did he still feel in debt? Do many of us suffer from the same frame of mind? Do we go about our daily lives still feeling the debt of sin and not truly experiencing freedom? "It is for freedom that Christ has set us free. Stand firm, then, and do not let yourselves be burdened again by a yoke of slavery" (Galatians 5:1).

Upon hearing of the great debt that God has cancelled through the cross of Jesus Christ, many of us leave the throne room forgetting the debt was impossible for us to pay, saying to ourselves, "I am in God's debt." Somehow we will work to pay God back for the cancelled debt provided by Jesus. We think this way because we still feel the debt of sin that we once owed. We refuse to accept that God can forgive us of everything and we treat others the same way. When you are tempted to surmise to God, "I am in your debt." Stop. Listen. You may hear him say, "No, you aren't."

Take a road less travelled. Experience the freedom of forgiveness from God through Jesus Christ, and forgive just as God has forgiven you.

To My Children

Children, Children, can't you see
Just how much you mean to me?
Our God is saying with a smile,
Just come and sit with me awhile.

Tell me dear ones of your trials,
These things that make you fear,
And, I will take them all away,
And show you how I care.

I will give your hearts a special touch
that only I can do,
And you will see that through these things
I'm always there with you

And you will see My precious ones
That these will make you grow,
In knowledge and in awe of me,
Because I love you so.

For these are only stepping stones,
To peace, and truth and love,
To a calm and fruitfilled life on earth,
And blessings from above

And someday dear ones,
I know that you will see,
My face in Heaven up above,
When I bring you home with Me.

With Unconditional love
from your Heavenly Father.

The Rest is Just Sand

Submitted by: Pam Peverill

A philosophy professor stood before his class and had some items in front of him. When class began, wordlessly he picked up a large empty Mayonnaise jar and proceeded to fill it with rocks about 2" in diameter. He then asked the students if the jar was full? They agreed that it was.

So the professor then picked up a box of pebbles and poured them into the jar. He shook the jar lightly. The pebbles, of course, rolled into the open areas between the rocks. He then asked the students again if the jar was full. They agreed it was. The students laughed.

The professor picked up a box of sand and poured it into the jar. Of course, the sand filled up everything else.

"Now," said the professor, "I want you to recognize that this is your life. The rocks are the important things - your family, your partner, your health, and your children - anything that is so important to you that if it were lost, you would be nearly destroyed. The pebbles are the other things that matter like your job, your house, and your car. The sand is everything else. The small stuff. If you put the sand into the jar first, there is no room for the pebbles or the rocks. The same goes for your life. If you spend all your energy and time on the small stuff, you will never have room for the things that are important to you.

Pay attention to the things that are critical to your happiness. Play with your children. Take time to get medical check-ups. Take your partner out dancing. There will always be time to go to work, clean the house, give a dinner party.

Take care of the rocks first - the things that really matter. Set your priorities. The rest is just sand.

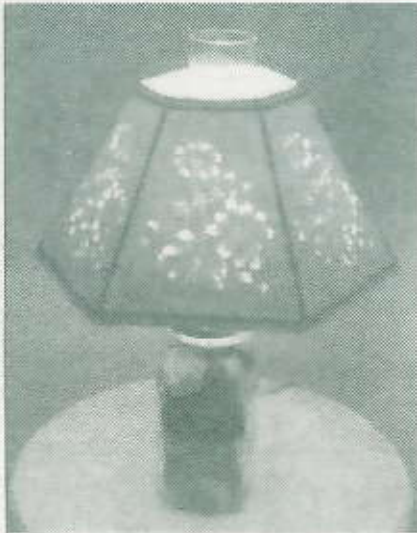

For those who would like to learn how to make a Cut & Pierce Lampshade, I will be teaching a class on Saturday October 20th and Saturday November 17th. The price is $18.00 all materials are included.

I am also putting together a list of names that would like to make a handmade paper (with dried flowers) lampshade.

Please call early to register your name for these classes as I can only take 5-6 at a time. These lampshades are really fun to do, and they make great gifts!

For more information or if you'd like to see one of these lampshades before you commit to taking a class, don't hesitate to call me at: 679-0019

The Signs of Coming Winter

Alex Middleton

The wind howls drearily around the eaves
And playfully picks up fallen leaves
And bears them away
without reprieve
The signs of coming winter.

The wintry sun makes shadows small
Amongst the trees so gaunt and tall
They've lost their glory of the fall
The signs of coming winter.

The birds they've all begun to swarm
To head down south where they'll be warm
I'll miss the swallows
around the barn
The signs of coming winter

Some folks like this time the best
When most of nature stops to rest
And old man winter begins to jest
About the sings of coming winter.

Dear Mr. Sweeney,

Re: Centreville District Community Development Plan-Street Lighting

Further to our telephone conversations, I have calculated the cost per year for the installation of 15 intersection streetlights as per your site plan. These streetlights would cost $2,086.05 per year, including the Municipality's portion of tax. At present there are 396 homes within the growth center of Centreville. This would amount to an approximate annual charge of $5.27 per home.

At present, distribution of streetlight charges throughout an entire growth center is not covered by our by-laws. Generally, all residents within 100 feet of each streetlight are charged and 66% of those affected must sign a petition in order for it to proceed to Council for approval.

However, your idea is worth pursuing. I recommend that you write a letter to Council requesting staff to look at that possibility of installing the streetlights through an area rate after support of a public meeting and vote. Some administration fees may be charged and a new procedure may need to be written for this scenario but I believe that your letter will be the first step in the right direction.

I look forward to discussing this with you further. If you have any questions please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours truly,

Street Lighting

Reference: Centreville District Community Development Plan Letter of March 21, 2001

1. At Reference the Centreville District Community Development Assoc. (CDCDA) sought your approval to meet with appropriate Municipal Staff with regards to specific aspects of the number one Goal of the Community's development plan, Safety & Security.
2. The meeting resulted in the Municipal Engineering Staff completing an estimate for the installation of 15 intersection streetlights in the Centreville Growth Centre. The intersection street lighting is being sought as a means to safer movement for both pedestrians and vehicles after dark. The lighting will serve the Growth Center's population at large.
- 3 - The Assoc is familiar with the Municipal by-law for streetlights. This by-law does not cover the distribution of streetlight charges throughout an entire growth center as the above situation warrants. The Assoc. therefore requests Council to have staff look at the possibility of installing the intersection streetlights through an area rate after support of a public meeting and vote.
- 4 - Your support in this matter will be appreciated by the members of the Community

Yours sincerely
