iWire Electrical

by Gail Salmon

There is nothing worse than an undiagnosed electrical problem that requires professional help. We have become so reliant on electricity that any related problem may disrupt our lives, sometimes at the most inconvenient time. If you are looking for a qualified electrician, Centreville is home to an excellent candidate.

In the past few years you may have noticed white trucks with the logo iWire Electrical Turning You On driving throughout the Valley. Our house needed upgrading to 200-amp wiring, and we decided to give them a try. During COVID, it has been difficult to find companies to help with renovations and upgrades.

Steven Boyd, the owner of iWire Electrical, was willing to come over and assess the wiring in our older home. He was great at explaining the need to upgrade some of our plugs and lights and correct some issues. Nova Scotia Power's inspector would not allow us to upgrade until we all met the requirements.

Steven Boyd began his career doing physical labour with not much future: assisting trained professionals by doing "dirty" work, as he called it—the parts of the jobs that were necessary but tedious. He was working with electricians and thought he would give that profession a try. He trained at the Nova Scotia Community College in 2004, and apprenticed with multiple different journeymen who taught him a great deal. He worked with Tibbetts Electrical for six years and Calvin Rogers for four years before starting his own company. Steven is now a Red Seal electrician with several years of experience.

Steven started iWire Electrical while living in Kentville. He ran it for seven years before moving to Centreville, where his company has been for almost two years. He said he always wanted to live in Centreville and now lives in Edgewood Estates Subdivision on Seneca Street with his wife, Tammy. Combined, they have three children who now live on their own.

iWire Electrical is a home-based company. Steven has five employees: four experienced, trained electricians and Tina Duran, who works in Steven's home office handling the phones and office work. He has one truck and two vans right now. The business is growing and expanding: he is looking for skilled and apprentice-registered employees. His Facebook page states he is looking for two new employees who meet the job requirements.

iWire Electrical does residential and commercial work, usually from Berwick to Wolfville, but will travel farther for certain jobs. Right now, they are working at the new Annapolis Royal Police Station. They have wired and lighted up many businesses: Sobey's, the Cornwallis Inn, Magic and AVR, Shannex, Chrismaria Family Restaurant, and Express Cider, to name a few. In 2019, iWire Electrical was nominated for the Annapolis Valley Chamber of Commerce's Outstanding Small Business of the Year Award. Steven knows it is important to give back to the community. iWire Electrical sponsors local baseball and hockey teams, providing jerseys. He also went to talk to students at Berwick School about electricity with demonstrations. Steven spends some of his time motorcycle racing in Shubenacadie.

Editor's Note

Mid-spring brought a long-awaited easing of COVID restrictions and a return to some semblance of normalcy. The Centreville Community Hall reopened, allowing clubs such as the Good Neighbours and 50-Plus to meet for the first time in a very long time. If we've learned anything from the pandemic, we shouldn't take 'normal' for granted. Here's hoping conditions continue to improve over the summer.

Thanks to our loyal advertisers who, once again, have committed their financial support for another year. You may notice this issue of the newsletter is a bit smaller than usual, but that happens periodically. It shows, however, that there is always room for more contributors—we'd love to hear from you. Thanks to those who share their talents and make this entertaining and informative newsletter.

Wishing you an enjoyable summer and a hope that, like my husband and me, you'll get to see kids and grandkids you haven't seen for almost three years!

For our job, we had to wait for the preliminary inspection from Nova Scotia Power, which took some time, and Steven ordered the supplies. COVID took its toll on businesses and made supplies scarce, but we finally received the call. I am glad to say we now have 200 amp wiring to meet any increased needs. Throughout this whole process, Steven and his employees were impeccable in their work ethic and ready to answer any of our questions. During our job, Steven also solved a problem for one of our friends in Wolfville, who had an electrical emergency, and offered solutions for his future needs.

As Centreville expands, many new businesses have made a home in the area, and Steven Boyd and iWire Electrical are welcome additions. The community is growing and attracting more qualified professionals and residents who share pride in their community and in the work they do.

Centreville Baptist Church Community Garden

Submitted by Anne-Marie Waterbury

I had heard vague references to a community garden in Centreville but knew almost nothing about it. As it was likely that other community members knew little about it, too, I decided to find out what I could. The timing was ideal: the newsletter would be published soon, and I could let others know what I learned. I contacted Buster

Best for information, as someone had suggested to me. Buster was happy to answer my questions and to have the opportunity to spread the word about the garden.

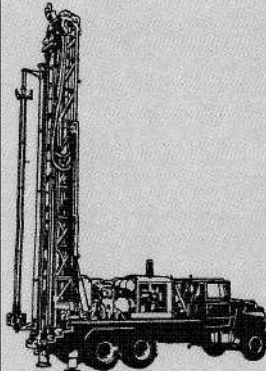

The community garden is a project of members of the Centreville Baptist Church. It is located on Hwy 359, directly opposite the pond at the former Gerry Frail Nursery. It is easily accessible, with off-road parking on both sides of the road. The main garden plot was not big enough to accommodate all the plantings. A smaller one, not quite as easily visible from the road, was added beyond the large trees by the picnic table.

Pretty well any vegetable you can name has been planted: potatoes, peas, beans, carrots, corn, parsnips, cauliflower, broccoli, peppers, squash, lettuce, plus others. Mack Frail donated about 400 tomato plants. The lettuce will be ready soon, and they expect to have two crops of peas and beans.

Community members are welcome to help themselves to the vegetables and are encouraged to take advantage of the opportunity. There will be no wasted food: produce that residents don't use will be donated to the Canning Food Bank.

Thank you to Buster for providing this information and to all those involved in what seems to me to be a worthwhile, win-win project.

If you have questions, contact Buster Best at 902-679-6695 or Greg Mitchell at 902-681-3272.

We Care

Update from the Marsh

by Gren Jones

*NS Senior Provincial Director
Ducks Unlimited Canada*

Dear Readers,

The month of May is always very productive, with nesting season in full swing. The geese on the west end of Church Street have produced their annual broods and, once again, Gus & Gabby, the geese at the twin ponds on Brow Mountain Road, have a nice family. Pond owners Bill & Barb Young are very proud to protect the waterfowl and other wildlife.

As a science-based organization, Ducks Unlimited Canada has recently introduced "Project Dragonfly." What can dragonfly populations tell us about the future of wildlife? Did you know that there are 154 native species of dragonflies in Canada? In our world, there are 6,016 species of dragonflies! What's important to understand is that these incredible creatures can tell us that something is wrong: 16% are at risk of extinction. Dragonflies have adapted and survived for 300 million years. What is going on? Research shows that dragonflies are recognized as an "indicator species" for biodiversity and our environment. Wetland loss is the leading cause of their woes.

Ducks Unlimited Canada is the leader in wetland conservation. Facts:

- * Globally, 40% of species rely on wetlands, including dragonflies.
- * The world's wetlands are disappearing three times faster than forests.
- * Between 1970 and 2015, 35% of the world's wetlands were lost. Canada is home to 25% of the world's remaining wetlands.
- * More than 550 wildlife species rely on Canada's wetlands, including 97 species listed as at risk.
- * Climate change is driving some species further north. Impacts could be similar to those of invasive species, creating new competition for Canada's native dragonflies and wildlife.

As humans, we can all help!

- * Make a one-time donation of $50.00 to save an area of wetlands equal to the size of an average home.
- * Become a citizen scientist and follow "iNaturalist" on social media.
- * Stay informed: sign up for the monthly newsletter
- * Social media options: Instagram, Facebook, LinkedIn or Twitter for Project Dragonfly updates.

In "The Canary in the Coalmine," Canada mourns the loss of James "Stocky" Edwards, WWII and wetland hero;

We are deeply saddened to share the news that our friend, Canadian wartime hero and lifelong conservationist, James "Stocky" Edwards, has passed away. Stocky's list of heroic achievements is long and impressive. He was known to many as Canada's top Second World War Flying Ace. At Ducks Unlimited Canada, he was also known as Conservation's Greatest Ace. We are humbled by the many ways he made giving back to wildlife and wild places part of his inspiring service to the country. In 2021, on his 100th birthday, the Lazo Marsh near Comox on Vancouver Island was dedicated in his honour. The Stocky Edwards Wetland and Wildlife Conservation Fund was established and raised $140,000. Stocky was a longtime volunteer with the Comox Chapter.

Congratulations to Kristen Noel of Centreville, who recently graduated from Acadia University with a Master's Degree in Wildlife Biology. She is managing the Nova Scotia Invasive Species Council.

More wetlands are being created locally:

Several public-access wetlands will be developed in Kings County, similar to Miner's Marsh in Kentville, Belle-Isle Marsh in Granville, and French Basin in Annapolis Royal.

Treasured Wetlands update from Miner's Marsh:

We recently installed a new interpretive sign and the Treasured Wetlands post on the berm. You can place your cell /camera in the slot on the post, take a selfie, and share it on FaceBook or other media.

As I wrote this article, the Apple Blossom Festival (ABF) was coming to its conclusion. I am pleased that Centerville resident and ABF President Logan Morse and the organizing committee were able to take on the festival with such short notice. They planned the entire event in three months, work which generally would have taken a year. It was an enormous effort on their part, a terrific success, and was one more hopeful sign of the end of COVID.

This spring saw the passage of our first budget as government. As per our campaign platform, the focus was on healthcare. We have increased healthcare spending by more than 10%. Healthcare will take time to fix. Adding more money will not solve the crisis we are in, but it will help on every level. Part of the crisis is the lack of healthcare workers. Healthcare is short-staffed at every level, from doctors to ambulance attendants. Each person missing in the system means others have to work harder. I, for one, am very grateful for every effort the healthcare professionals are making to keep us all healthy! Thank you so very much.

I am very appreciative of the opportunity to be your MLA, and I remain dedicated to serving the people of Kings North. Please, contact me if you have an issue with the government or need assistance.

Thanks,

Story from the Family Farm by Mack Frail

The June edition of The Centre Post caught me unawares. On May 31st, Anne-Marie Waterbury phoned me concerning my submission. I don't understand how I could have forgotten—I don't expect that there could be any connection to my 87th birthday in April. I have had a busy spring, starting plants from seed in my small greenhouses, not to mention my many other responsibilities. I have always enjoyed being active and taking an interest in life. Recently, those activities are becoming more difficult for me to accomplish.

Most are aware that I have an interest in history. History close to where I live is of particular interest to me. The road where I live is presently known as Banes Road: I live on the west end near the Highway 359 intersection. It is interesting that there was a French Acadian community on Banes Road before Centreville became a community. I am not certain where the first Acadian homes on the road were built. They may have settled in the hollow near the brook, where they would have had a water supply. The first artifacts and items of interest found were located on the top of the second hill, where there is a cemetery with no grave markers.

A short distance beyond Centreville and into Sheffield Mills on Lyons Branch Road, there were a lot of old Acadian foundations. Years ago, I located many of them beyond the end of Lyons Branch Road. Modern equipment, such as bulldozers, has destroyed these foundations. I have not been able to find the name the Acadians had for their community. When the New England Planters took possession of the community in about 1835, they named it Atlanta. A section of Banes Road and the area still go by that name. The Irish who arrived in Nova Scotia in large numbers because of the terrible poverty in Ireland were closely associated with the Acadians. After the Expulsion of the Acadians in 1755, the Irish settled in the French Acadian community.

The Irish names, such as Lyons, establish their presence in the community. The children of the New England Planter family named Eaton were the prominent settlers after the Irish. They settled on the land after the distribution of land grants. The Irish had few rights, and it would appear that the land was taken from them or they had moved from the area.

It is for a reason that I describe this brief history of the area that became known as Atlanta. I am anxious to share my excitement at recent correspondence with a descendent of an early family that lived there.

In April, Anne-Marie contacted me about an email received on Centreville's website. It was from a gentleman from England named Jonathan who was searching for his mother's place of birth and home in Nova Scotia. I sent him an email explaining that there are three Centrevilles in Nova Scotia. His reply mentioned Atlanta and that it was in an apple-producing area. After more correspondence and exchange of pictures, Jonathan agreed that I had located the former Maltby home where his mother was born on June 10, 1910. Phillip Murphy is presently the owner of the lovely old home and farm located in Atlanta, east of the intersection of Eaton Branch Road. The home is the first house on the left, above the first hill.

The Maltby family moved into the home in about 1905. The last child born to the Maltbys was in 1912. I would like to write more about the Maltby family but, not wanting to offend Jonathan, I will write only information with his permission.

The house was built in 1836. The bricks used to build the chimney were made in Centreville from Centreville clay. Judson Eaton, who was born in 1840 and died in 1916, and his wife, Adelia, were living in the home in 1861. They moved to the province of Quebec in 1897. There would have been other residents before the Eatons.

George and Gertrude Desborough moved into the home in 1920. They were also from England and were good friends with my mother and father. George was employed as an engineer on the Panama Canal. He and Gertrude lived very interesting lives. I was a young boy when we went there to visit. If space would allow, I have many stories I could share about our visits to the Desborough farm.

Update from the recent (CDPRA) meeting:

- * Reverrick LeBlanc is our summer student. He is 15 years old and will be in Grade 10 at North Kings Education Centre (NKEC) next year. He is on the Centreville baseball team and often hangs out at the park practicing basketball with his friends. He exudes confidence and is very eager to start!
- * We received $500 from WestFor Management Inc. and $900 from NS Chicken Growers. These funds are for a Bike Fixit Station and bike racks. We thank these organizations for their generous donations.
- * We are still waiting to hear from the Municipality of Kings regarding the grants we applied for: the Bike Fixit Station and bike racks; plasma cars (a children's ride-on toy); pickleball equipment; trail work; eaves troughing, and dump trailer.
- * The children's picnic table that vandals demolished has been replaced. Thank you to the residents who came forward: one with a monetary donation for materials, and brothers Kenn and Byrne Krooks who constructed it.
- * The light in the Saxon Street parking lot is ready to be connected by Nova Scotia Power.
- * There will be a baseball tournament on the July 1st weekend. John Scofield suggested they paint and redo the dugouts and put on the NKEC logo. The committee agreed to provide some of the money to purchase paint.
- * Vandalism concerns led to the denial of a request to have the washrooms open during the day. Once the student starts work on July 1st, they will be open.
- * For several reasons, Centreville Day was cancelled — including a lack of volunteers and the high cost of fireworks. The Songfest also was cancelled. The car show is still on for August 29th, with food trucks on site.

Community News

The Good Neighbour Club by Susan Wood

The Good Neighbour Club (GNC) resumed meetings in April 2022 and held its last meeting for the season on June 16th. The next meeting will be on Thursday, September 15th at 7:00 pm at Centreville Hall. Local women are welcome to attend and see what the club is all about. The Good Neighbour Club started in 1947, and its members have supported the community and the hall for 75 years.

What an accomplishment!

Centreville 50-Plus Club "Friends Enjoying Friends" by Darrell E. Spurr, President

With no 50-Plus sessions for two years due to COVID, we began meeting again on March 23, 2022, following all COVID guidelines. Several new members joined our regulars, and our attendance numbers have increased each week. Members recently celebrated our 13th anniversary and all monthly birthdays with cake and refreshments. As usual, there will be no 50-Plus meetings in July and August.

Hope to see everyone in September...
Enjoy the Summer.

The Charles Macdonald Society Introduces:
The Labour of Love Raffle
Submitted by Teresa Drahos

To save the Charles Macdonald Concrete House in Centreville, we are now launching our next fundraising campaign, the Labour of Love Weekend at the Blue Cottage!

For those who haven't had the opportunity to stay at our unique Blue Cottage at Huntington Point, here's your chance! One lucky winner will spend Labour Day Weekend at the Blue Cottage. We will be selling raffle tickets for $10 each.

The raffle winner will receive:

- four days and three nights (September 2 - 5) at the Blue Cottage at Huntington Point;
- a $50 gift certificate from Hall's Harbour Lobster Pound;
- a $30 gift certificate from Sea Level Brewing;
- a gift basket of fruit and baked goods from Foote's Farm Market, and
- fresh flowers from Two Birds One Stone.

A huge thank-you to these local groups and businesses that donated items.

You will find more information about the raffle on our website - www.concretehouse.ca. We will be selling raffle tickets:

- at the Charles Macdonald Concrete House after July 1st, when we open the museum for the summer;
- at various locations around Centreville and Kentville, which will be posted on our website;
- online, via email and e-transfer to charlesmacdonaldsociety@gmail.com. Please ensure your email includes your name, phone number, and how many raffle tickets you would like to purchase, followed by an e-transfer for the appropriate amount. For example, if you send us $100, we will put your name in the hat 10 times, etc., and
- by post: mail a cheque made out to The Charles Macdonald Society, 19 Saxon Street, Centreville NS B0P1J0. Include your cheque, name, civic address, email address, phone number, and how many raffle tickets you would like to purchase. Again, if you send us $100, we will put your name in the hat 10 times, etc.

The winning ticket will be drawn on August 15th, 2022.

Sincerely,

The Charles Macdonald Concrete House of Centreville Board of Directors

- 1 tsp almond extract

Tulips for Polio

Our New Minas Rotary Club is selling Tulips for Polio again this year, a fundraiser supporting our Rotary International Project to eliminate polio.

The price for a box of 25 tulip bulbs is $25. The flowers will be our Rotary colours—a combination of red and gold/yellow. The 2019 tulip was mainly yellow, the 2020 tulip mainly red, and the 2021 flower had more yellow than the 2020 one. They are always a surprise, and all are beautiful.

If you are interested in purchasing some this year or want more information, please email me. If twenty-five is too many, join up with a friend.

Orders will be going at the end of July, and the boxes will be delivered in early fall, in time for fall planting.

Hope to talk to you soon,

HAS IT BEEN A LONG SPRING?

By Sylvia Gard

Around the time of the Winter Solstice, I chafe against the long and Dark. A long time ago. Now, the approaching Summer Solstice finds me yearning for the long and Light.

Do I have issues with Dark?

I dress in Dark clothes. Not deliberately. It's what I have for outerwear. It's Dark time. Clock time is well past midnight. I leave the house to wait for Light, for the dawning of the day.

Anxiousness threads its way into the recesses of my heart. Does my darkness in the Dark render me invisible and somehow protected? Yet I feel so vulnerable.

The sky is clear, the moon so bright that the stars seem dim and distant. It's pleasantly warm, with a gentle breeze. I hear, rather than see, a flag fluttering. A familiar sound even in the Dark. I step silently along the asphalt way, noticing that the spring peepers cease their chorus as I draw near. Do they sense me through sound or the vibrations through the ground? I wonder about my apparent intrusion into their song.

Rarely am I out walking in the Dark awaiting dawn. I hear a rooster crow. For a moment I am amused by his early, way too early, calling of the Dawn. Perhaps he, too, has sleepless nights. As I move along, the houses do not show inner lights suggesting that the occupants are sheltered and sleeping peacefully. Yet I see doorbell lights, car interiors blinking blue, solar lights edging a walkway, porch lights, flashing green lights, all making light in the Dark. In one area, there are houses with no exterior lighting. I feel a deep sense of peace in this absence.

In time, the moon gradually changes from a white gold to an orange gold. Is it that the moon is reflecting the light of the sun before the sun has even risen? I sit and wait. The moon slips down behind trees, its light broken by these standing ones. Starlight fades. Along this same ridge of trees, there is a blinking red light, as if to announce that the moon is setting. A bird trills out a song. A plane's drone reaches down. I see far far away its flashing light. Suddenly I feel bereft. Moon has dropped below the horizon.

I sit still. Close my eyes. The wind has picked up. A chorus of bird songs begins, faintly at first, then building in volume and numbers. These invisible birds seeming to make the forest sing the Dawning Song. The sweetness of the night trees infuses the air. The wind drops. The 'day' has been delivered. A white truck's headlights sweep past. A lone walker begins his daily route.

The eastern sky is faintly orange-pink-mauve-blue. Ever so softly the colours deepen, cradling this rising orb of Radiant Light.

And for your listening pleasure:

Here Comes the Sun—Nina Simone soul music. She does the vocals and the piano. My fav.

Here Comes the Sun—The Beatles (2019 Mix) No intro needed.

Here Comes Summer— (1959) Jerry Keller. Dance to this!!!
